Lodge Notes and Fraternal Interests

Lodge Oscar Officers Installed—New York Department Chaplain Visits W. R. C.—Funeral of Prominent Odd Fellow Today—Columbus Day to be Celebrated.

L'UNION ST. JEAN BAPTISTE D'AMERIQUE.

The stated meeting of Lafayette council, No. 207, was held Thursday evening in Foresters' hall, P. Levesque presiding in the absence of the president, Dr. G. A. Comeau. Routine business was transacted with a discussion on one or two other matters of interest and a pleasant informal social time closed the evening.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

With all the councils of the state, White Cross council, No. 13, has received a communication from New Haven council to the effect that on Oct. 12, Columbus day, a legal holiday, fitting ceremonies will be held in New Haven by the councils of the Knights of Columbus throughout Connecticut and the adjoining states to commemorate the day.

On the evening of Oct. 11 a grand exemplification of the fourth degree under the direction of Bernard E. Lynch, master of the fourth degree, district of Connecticut, will be given. On the morning of Oct. 12, the 417th anniversary of the discovery of America, there will be a short parade of the councils of the order from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and Rhode Island, and also in the afternoon an athletic carnival has been prepared for the participation of the youth of the order. In the evening the day will be fittingly closed with a grand charity ball. The parade will be the feature of the day, and all the councils have been invited to take part in it.

ODD FELLOWS.

Monday evening Uncas lodge, No. 11, will have a visit from U. D. Jacoby, Wechsler of Jewett City for the purpose of installing the officers for the next six months.

Odd Fellows from all over the state will be in New Haven this afternoon to attend the funeral of Frederick Boatsford, who for thirty-seven years was grand secretary of the state, spending the greater part of his vigorous manhood in the upbuilding of the order.

Upon his resignation on May 16, 1896, his distinguished and invaluable service to the organization was fittingly recognized by the order by its making him grand secretary emeritus for the rest of his life. An idea of the great work of upbuilding which he accomplished is conveyed by the figures of membership which show that when he took office the order had 2,292 members in the state and when he resigned 18,506.

Outside of the Odd Fellows, Mr. Boatsford was a member of the Masons, Wooster lodge, and a prominent member of St. Thomas' church.

The funeral will be held from St. Thomas' church at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Beardsley officiating. There will be players at the house at 2:30. At the graveside in Evergreen cemetery the services will be in charge of the grand lodge of Connecticut of the Odd Fellows. The

NORWICH RICH IN FAMOUS MEN.

Norwich Has Direct Lineal Connections With Six Presidents.

Perhaps no other place in the country has direct lineal connections with six presidents, as has Norwich. These are Presidents Millard Fillmore, Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt, and only in the last case is the connection other than through the blood flowing in the veins of the president himself. In President Roosevelt's case the connection is made through Mrs. Roosevelt, who is a direct lineal descendant, and who far removed from a Norwich hero of two wars.

In the late 1770's a Captain John Fillmore, who had been living in Ipswich, Mass., removed his household goods and chattels by the overland route used in those days, to Norwich, and settled in the Rose of New England, as it has since come to be called. History relates that after a time the family which he founded drifted over into New York state and there the thirteenth president of the United States did not have the fortune to be born in Norwich, as was his father, Nathaniel, 2d, grandson of Captain John.

President Grant's family tree finds its main root on his mother's side in that Huntington family whose name has been connected with the history of the town since Christopher Huntington or his first child, John, was born in Norwich and whose sons and daughters have gone into a multitude of activities in this and other lands. A later Christopher, daughter of John, was Noah Grant of Tolland and she was Ulysses Grant's grandmother several times removed. No less which and his ancestry of President Hayes, as it comes down from that John Birchard whence his middle name is derived and who was one of the first thirty-five proprietors of Norwich. George Hayes settled in Windsor, in 1682, and his great-grandson, Rutherford, married Sophia Birchard.

The blood of both the Mason and Pritchard families was in that of President Garfield. Aaron Cleveland, the man who first put into print in Connecticut anti-slavery sentiments, was the ancestor of the Deacon William Cleveland, the Norwich silversmith, whose spoons are treasured by those who collect such antiques. The Deacon's son was Grover Cleveland's grandfather. His son got the fever which possessed so many people from his section to go over into the rich lands in central New York, and that is the reason why Grover Cleveland wasn't born in Norwich. In speaking at an old home week in Norwich in 1901, the ex-president said that his earliest recollections were of hearing tales of Norwich and Deacon William, and of how he drew down upon himself the condemnation of an old gentleman who had known the latter, when he spoke disparagingly of his ancestor to draw the other out.

Mr. Roosevelt's connection with Norwich is direct enough to give the city the right to claim her husband, Gen. Daniel Tyler, who commanded the first regiment raised in Connecticut in 1781, and had previously made his record in the regular army, was her grandfather. From the first days of the settlement, the project to establish which originated with Major John Mason, Norwich has had sons and daughters in whom to take pride. Mason was a captain when in 1659 he and the Rev. James Pritch led the band of 35 first settlers through the wilderness to the final encampment on the Chelsea plain where historical tableaux on the fifth of July retraced the purchase for 70 pounds the nine square miles of territory from Uncas, Owaneco and Attawand. Mohican chiefs. Among those first proprietors are found the names of Backus, Calkins, Griswold, Hyde, Lemingwell, Huntington, Keybold, Royce, Tracy, Oyster, Allen, Baldwin, Bradford and others whose posterity was destined to become famous. The labors of the Rev. Mr. Pritch to Christianize the Indians and those of Capt. John Mason to subdue the unruly Pequots and Narragansetts are well known to those Indian wars. Norwich was much of the time the

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

The regular meeting of Sedgwick corps, No. 16, was held Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial Hall. The officers present were: Mrs. E. E. Woodruff, W. H. Huntley, E. H. Sperry, E. Beecher, W. H. Northwood and A. N. McIntyre.

Mr. Boatsford was in his 89th year when his death occurred this week of heart disease due to old age and general debility.

Mr. Boatsford leaves no close relatives, the nearest of kin being Benjamin Blackman of Schenectady and Theodore Blackman of New Haven, who are nephews. He had been living at his home with G. Herbert Bishop, a grand-nephew.

ORDER OF VASA.

The officers of Lodge Oscar, No. 30, were installed Friday evening at the regular meeting of the lodge in Foresters' hall, by District Deputy Charles Anderson of Willimantic and John V. Peterson of Willimantic, master of ceremonies, assisted by three of the local lodge, Oscar Dahl as vice president, Charles Henson as secretary and Carl Johnson as treasurer. The following were those placed in office for the next six months: President, Valentine Pearson; vice president, Adolph Anderson; secretary, John Valin; assistant secretary, Mrs. Andrew Swanberg; financial secretary, John F. Valin; treasurer, Andrew Swanberg; chaplain, Miss Christine Pearson; master of ceremonies, Sven Philipsson; inside guard, Carl Pearson; outside guard, Anton Eliasson; past president, Charles W. Pearson.

A social time with refreshments closed the evening and interesting remarks for the good of the order were made by the visiting district deputy.

EASTERN STAR.

Fidelity chapter, Eastern Star, of New London, has invited Sackem chapter of Norwich to a basket picnic at Golden Spout (Atlantic) Wednesday at 11 o'clock, leaving New London parades each half-hour. It is hoped that a large delegation will go from Norwich.

center, and it is supposed to have been here that Uncas, always the friendly Indian chief, despatched Miantonomi, the Narragansett, who was given to him by the colonial council at Boston, to be put away.

There is some doubt about this and a contemporaneous story that the Boston council turned the fraction chief over to the Hartford ministers, who gave the order for his death, which occurred not far from there. At all events, Uncas lies buried in Norwich under a monument dedicated by President Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren, then vice president, with his square and braves about him in the Indian cemetery, while at Sackem's plain there is a monument to the brave chief, Miantonomi. There is also shown a prodigious leap across the gorge at the Norwich falls, where Miantonomi is said to have eluded Uncas, so that he was not caught until he reached Sackem's plain, where Uncas cut his heart out and declared the place to be the sweetest morsel he ever tasted.

Even that early stock in direct descent have come from Griswold, once governor of Connecticut, Governor Roger Baldwin and Chief Justice Baldwin of the present Connecticut supreme court, Major General John Pope (from the Backus family), and all the Huntingtons, Samuel Huntington was the president of the Continental congress, and he and William Williams were two of Connecticut's four signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Norwich was the center of activity of John Bull's brother Jonathan, Connecticut's Revolutionary Governor Trumbull, Washington's close friend and adviser, whose home was in the adjoining town of Lebanon, says the Hartford Times. Josiah Trumbull, his son, and the first commissary general of the American army, lived in Norwich and his brother, the artist, whose paintings of the men of those days are authoritative, spent much time here. Lafayette, Steuben, Pulaski; these were family names and theirs family faces in Revolutionary days. No continental soldiers were more quickly at Boston when the war began than those from Norwich. The names of Generals Jedediah and Ebenezer Huntington made for themselves at Bunker Hill and afterwards, match those of the many lesser officers and hundreds of privates for personal valor.

That Colonel John Durkee, who led the 40 settlers sent by the Susquehanna company, organized at Windham, to people the Wyoming valley in Pennsylvania in 1768, was one of Norwich's most noted sons in those stirring times. Of course, too, mention must be made of Benedict Arnold, the Norwich boy, whose peculiar career made him so much trouble, the cellar of whose home is still standing.

Marines Coming in Fall.

The company of marines which was to have been stationed at the navy yard about July 15 will not come until the fall. The order President Taft replacing marines aboard ship in revocation of President Roosevelt's order, which assigned the marines to shore duty, is the cause of the belated arrival of the company.
